Mayor Hopefuls Offer Opinions On Omaha U Building Plans Postponed As Federal Aid Is Denied

By Linda Priesman

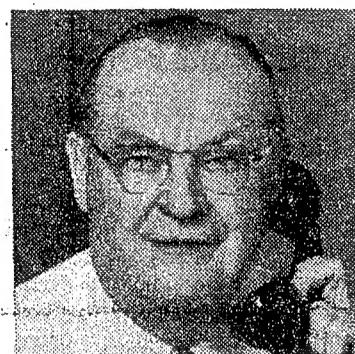

With the city election just four days away, the GATEWAY decided to do some probing into the feelings of the Mayor candidates towards Omaha University.

In the following paragraphs are the replies of incumbent James J. Dworak and A. V. (Al) Sorensen.

Sorensen

Al Sorensen believes that a university improves an area. Universities offer the world "brains." He feels that this is more important than any other single thing in striving for progress. "Young people give the community and state a 'transfusion.'" Continuing he feels that we (the community) should support our universities. "It is vital to our well-being. The future leaders of industry and business come from universities," he commented.

Sorensen

More specifically, a municipal university, such as Omaha U, does a "great job in a specific community." He re-iterated by saying that Omaha should whole-heartedly support its universities, both OU and Creighton.

"Disturbed"

Mr. Sorensen commented that he was disturbed with the 1963 defeat of the proposed two mill increase for OU. He emphasized, though, that he could not make a commitment of his future support of another try without first knowing the facts and circumstances.

In light of the recent charges that students are being priced out of a college education, this candidate replied that he didn't know if the charges were truthful. He pointed out that on various occasions OU's last president, Milo Bail, called him when students needed financial help. "It has been my privilege to help many young people," Sorensen replied.

He continued by saying that many Omahans are willing to help needy students. Like many people, he feels that "where there is a will to get an education, there is a way."

Al Sorensen believes that OU's College of Adult Education is "tremendously important" to the city of Omaha. "It offers adults an opportunity to expand their education, he continued.

"Wonderful"

In reference to Philip Vogt's study on East Omaha, Sorensen commented that it's "wonderful." "I'd like to see more research and study," he explained. Feeling that in this way students are making a contribution to the city, business and industry, he replied, "It's good for the students." Mr.

Vogt is an associate professor of sociology.

Sorensen believes that buildings don't necessarily make a good university. The necessary tool, he continued, is the stature and caliber of the teaching personnel.

"Think Clearly"

Al Sorensen thinks students should learn to think for themselves. "To be able to think clearly must be the primary goal of education," he stated. Summing up, this Mayor hopeful said, "The uneducated person is eventually the unemployed person."

Dworak

James J. Dworak feels that the role of a municipal university is "to provide for the students of Omaha a quality education at a minimum tuition."

As far as students being priced out of an education, Dworak commented that this has been the trend over the last few years.

When asked what the relationship should be between city government and a municipal university, the incumbent replied it should be to share the talents and facilities of each for the benefit of the entire city. He pointed out the work Col. Anson Marston has done on the Planning Board. Colonel Marston is professor and head of the engineering department.

Mayor Dworak also cited the example of CAE Dean William T. Utley. Dean Utley helped write Omaha's City Charter.

Reciprocation

"The city is reciprocating," he continued, "in designating streets in the vicinity of OU as one-way thoroughfares to help the parking situation at the University."

James Dworak also feels that a college education is almost a necessity. "It behooves a city to give as much financial support as possible so the future leaders in business and government can take their places in the community."

Try Again

Summing up, this candidate for re-election believes the University should try again soon for a mill levy increase. The facilities are "well used around the clock and around the year," he concluded.

Princess Hopefuls . . .

Maie Day festivities will be held May 18. Election of Maie Day Princess will be held May 14. Candidates are, left to right: Ruth Helligso, Judy McCoy, Judy Jensen and Phyllis Faase. See Page 7 for complete story.

My House Will Come Over To You

By Dick Smith

The University of Omaha's bid for an 800 thousand-dollar Federal grant to construct the proposed science and engineering building west of the present Applied Arts facility was turned down this week.

Omaha University president Dr. Leland Traywick said he received a letter Tuesday from the chairman of the Nebraska Commission for the Higher Education Facilities Act which stated Omaha University had been given a "priority two" rating on its application. The priority two rating, does, in effect reject the application for a time.

Kearney Wins

Kearney State College ended up on top of the application list and thus qualified for a similar amount. Dr. Traywick said he has been informed that Kearney will construct a science building with the funds granted.

Dr. Traywick said the rejection of the application set the University's development plans back about six months. He added, "We will probably reapply for the grant in January, 1966."

Concerning the results of the committee's findings, Dr. Traywick said:

Point System

"Both institutions were evaluated on a point system. Kearney received more points than did we."

The president quickly added, "This does not mean, though, we do not need the new building." He said it only indicated that Kearney needed their's worse.

Dr. Traywick continued, "While the committee was on campus evaluating the needs of the University, they did state there was a particular need in the biology and chemistry departments."

If all had gone well and the application was approved, Dr. Traywick said bids on the new building would be let sometime in February. The completion date for the new facility would have then been mid-semester 1966-67.

1967 Completion

As things stand now, with an approval of the application in January, the science and engineering building can be completed, ideally, in time for the 1967 first semester.

However, neither Dr. Traywick nor the Board of Regents, have indicated such a timetable.

Dr. Traywick said the "only silver lining in the gray cloud" is that Omaha University will not have to raise all of the matching construction funds at once. He said, "This gives us a little time to reconsider the new building completely."

The new science and engineering building was to have been constructed about 70 feet west of the present Applied Arts building and would be connected by a covered walkway.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

I opened my Sunday paper to find out that Kristy Isaacson had been selected as the 1965 College World Series Queen by some Omaha sportswriters and sportscasters.

My first reaction was, "wonderful, another OU girl wins." But then I began to wonder about a couple of items that were missing. When was she selected to be our candidate and by whom?

I heard no prior announcement that there was to be an OU girl up for the honor. There were no petitions to be signed. I understand that all the other girls were selected by class vote at their school or hospital.

I remember no such election at Omaha University and I have not been hiding away in a corner all year.

There is no malice intended towards Miss Isaacson, who is certainly a fitting representative, but towards the procedures used to choose her at Omaha U.

I want to know how she was chosen and who chose her. And in the future, whether or not it might be put to an election. I feel that a person should be given every opportunity to compete for such an honor.

If this selection is in the hands of one or two people, it is not only unfair, but very presumptuous on the part of those who select her. Do they think they can speak for an entire student body? Certainly not. It's so strange that the other schools didn't do it that way.

When things like this happen, I feel that more and more are we, the students, being deprived of our voice in matters where we should speak loudly.

Sincerely,
Steven Goldsmith,

Editor's Note: Dean of Students Donald Pflasterer replied, "She was selected by Dean Hill, Jack Malik, William Gerbracht and myself."

Dean Pflasterer told the GATEWAY that there was probably a more democratic way of selecting OU's Queen Candidate, but she really wasn't supposed to be selected by a student vote, despite the fact that she does represent the student body.

"We're open for suggestions on a new way to do it, however. The time element is one of the factors in this thing," the Dean added. (Miss Isaacson says she was informed two months ago)

We have always chosen cheerleaders because they know the most about sports," he added.

Unfortunate

Dear Editor,

How unfortunate it is that Miss Grasso, instead of being original and constructive as benefits a Student Council member, has set forth a not so constructive, typical reaction to criticism. In stead of calmly viewing the charges and proposed improvements and evaluating them, she has launched into an emotional defense of the status quo.

The perennial complaint among student leaders is that 'No one Cares.' Yet, let one person care enough to criticize and propose improvements and he is beset from all sides with cries of 'malcontent,' 'radical' and 'troublemaker' and accused of being jealous of those in power. As long as this attitude prevails at OU, we will never attain that level of student cooperation and growth which marks the successful university.

Sincerely,
T. A. Shimko

Dear Unaffiliated Students,
It is my opinion that we as a group do more to criticize and to destroy school spirit than to support school activities and to build school spirit.

The Student Council this year has made great efforts to interest the "out crowd" in school activities. They have asked for representatives from each organization to come to meetings and to contribute their ideas on how to improve the school. They have met us half way and deserve our support and gratitude.

It is time that we meet the school authorities and our fellow students half way. There are several candidates running for the Student Council who are unaffiliated. They are running on their own merits as responsible leaders. It is our responsibility to vote.

We should not vote against the "in crowd" but we should vote for those persons who have proved by their interest and efforts and their willingness to work.

Your Fellow Unaffiliated,
Alice Hewitt

Help Valuable

Dear Editor,

I just wanted to take time to commend the Student Council member who came up with the idea for the 50 dollar allotment for the Maie floats. There has been such a long silence since I read their names on the Homecoming favors; I wondered if they were still alive.

I'm sure the help is valuable to many of the smaller campus organizations. Thank you, Councilman, whoever you are.

Sincerely,
Judy Wilson

Elections to choose Maie Day Princess, plus student representatives to the board of student publications and the student council will be held next Wednesday. Polls will be set up in the Ben Gallagher Game Room in the Student Center and will be open from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Editor's Note: GET OUT AND VOTE . . . IF YOU DON'T, DON'T COMPLAIN. YOUR VOTE IS AS IMPORTANT AS THE NEXT GUY'S.

Dolinsky Gets A Grant For Orient Study

For Carroll Jean Dolinsky it will be Japanese studies and Hawaiian beaches beginning in June. Miss Dolinsky has been selected as one of the thirty East-West Center Institute for Student Interchange scholarship winners from the United States.

Miss Dolinsky is a sophomore majoring in French and Spanish. The North High graduate is a holder of a Omaha University Regent's Scholarship and has maintained a 4.0 accumulative average. She has served as president of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshmen women's honorary, for the past year.

$4,800 Grant

Scholarships were offered to Liberal Arts students for their junior year to study Chinese and Japanese and related courses at the University of Hawaii. Fifteen scholarships are for students of Chinese and fifteen for Japanese. The twelve-month grant provides travel to and from Hawaii, tuition, books, food allowance, lodging, health insurance and a small personal allowance, which comes to approximately $4,800.

Orientation

Miss Dolinsky will leave June 16 and begin an orientation program June 17 at the East-West Center in Honolulu, where she will stay while attending the University of Hawaii. Classes for the summer session, which lasts twelve weeks, will begin June 22 and will cover two full years of language study in Japanese. During the two semesters of her junior year she will cover a third year of language study. In addition she will take at least one related Asian area course and one or two elective courses each semester, bringing her academic load to 15 or 16 hours. These courses may be counted toward a degree. Carroll at OU where she will complete her senior year.

The top ten winners who have distinguished themselves during their junior year at the University of Hawaii will be awarded continuing grants for their second summer, enabling them to study Chinese in Taipei or Japanese in Tokyo. Supervision will be arranged by the University of Hawaii.

This program is designed to meet a need which, in the past decade, has become increasingly critical. Students in most Liberal Arts Colleges have not had access to Chinese and Japanese study until they go on for graduate work, since relatively few institutions are able to offer such courses.

Profitable

Knowing a third language, such as Japanese, will be profitable since she is interested in being an interpreter. Miss Dolinsky said she is looking forward to a surfing class, since she loves to swim and water ski. During her school breaks, she will visit the various islands of Hawaii and learn their customs. She will live with families while staying on the individual islands.

So it is Aloha for Carroll Jean Dolinsky, who leaves Omaha June 16 for her new home, Hawaii.

Omaha University's Indian tradition dates back to the 1930's when students borrowed ideas and Indian lore from the Omaha Indians of Macy, Nebraska.

Dr. Traywick and check . . . "That's right $32,367."

Check Brings Establishment Of Fine Arts Scholarship

Omaha University president Dr. Leland Traywick announced this week that the University has been given $32,367 for the establishment of a scholarship fund to be used by students majoring in the fine arts.

Dr. Traywick said the endowment was willed by Mrs. Bertha Mengedoht-Hatz, a longtime friend of the university.

He said the sum was one-half of the total estate of the late Mrs. Hatz.

Mrs. Hatz has given the University previous funds for scholarships.

Dr. Traywick added the amount for the scholarship is not final and could be doubled when Mrs. Hatz's will is finalized by an attorney.

Prestige Given: OU Accredited

Early in March three men examined every aspect of Omaha University—past, present and future. They looked at the facilities, inspected the curriculum, the library and teaching loads.

High Quality

On April 29, Dean Lucas, who had been attending the annual meeting of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business in New York City, telephoned President Traywick the good news. Omaha University had been awarded a membership into the Association.

This membership means that OU's intellectual climate in business is of the highest academic quality. This in turn means more prestige for students, faculty, the university and the community of Omaha. It assures students that they will continue to receive the highest caliber of professional business education. This membership also means that OU will be able to establish a local chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma, an honorary business administration fraternity.

No Accident

This membership was no accident; it stands for a culmination of years of hard work not only by the business administration faculty but by the entire university. Dr. Charles Bull, chairman of the administrative and curriculum committee of the College of Business Administration, said there was really an intensification of efforts during the last few years.

Orchesis Gives Its Annual Dance

"An Evening of Dance," will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the Administration Building Auditorium.

The annual event is sponsored by Orchesis, modern dance honorary and is free and open to the public.

Some 20 honorary members, with dances and costumes especially designed for the event, will participate.

Carpeting Among Summer Projects

How would you like to attend lectures in a carpeted classroom? Sound pretty plush?

Unlikely, as it may seem, you may have the opportunity to do just that next fall. One of the allotments made for the physical plant department's summer projects is for experimental carpeting. The carpeting will be installed in classrooms, on stairwells and other places to test its feasibility. According to results from other universities, maintenance costs are greatly reduced when carpeting is utilized.

Experimenting with pedestal seating will continue with the installation of the space-saving seats in room 389 of the Administration Building.

Other projects listed in the $73,964 summer budget include remodeling of some offices, resurfacing of parking lots, painting and repairs.

Some of the summer work is scheduled to start within the next few weeks.

Bushes

What The New Guy Says . . .

"The most important thing is to see that the program never reaches the stage where our coaches must win or lose their jobs."

So said Omaha University's new president Leland Traywick Tuesday morning as he was relaxing in his office pondering about things like classrooms, space, money and where in the duce are we going to put all those cars.

"If it ever comes to the point where we must choose between spending money to go big time in sports or improve our carryover sports, (Intramurals) we'll take the students and their sports."

"The budget request by the athletic department is most certainly in keeping with our program, but whether or not they will get it depends upon our other needs . . . you know, maybe we can't afford it."

Those words came from a man who in the next month may have a lot to do with shaping the future of intercollegiate athletics at Omaha University. They are encouraging.

President Traywick comes from Southwest Missouri State, a school whose rise to athletic prominence parallels that at OU almost perfectly.

"Yes, we always played night football at Springfield, but I prefer day games, whether or not it be baseball, football or whatever," said Traywick.

"We did get better crowds at night simply because our day games couldn't compete with the University of Missouri and the other area Big Eight schools." That sentence sounds very familiar to Omaha football fans.

Doctor Traywick then went on to say, "I suppose that the same thing would happen here as well." That also is very familiar.

"Our basic problems lies with alumni, students and the City of Omaha itself, we need the support of the community and our own graduates if we are to present a good program to the people. How we get that support is another thing," said the President.

More On Carryovers . . .

The President went on . . . "But the thing I would like to see is more emphasis on sports like flycasting, swimming, marksmanship and rifle safety. I feel that everyone should get a chance to fish, hunt and see the other side of athletics," he said.

"Why I know men in World War II that could have drowned in a teacup. We need things like a swimming pool some day, and many other things."

"I hate to see physical education being dropped as a requirement in any curriculum by any college," the President added.

"The Committee of the Future will have some serious thinking to do on that matter."

Back To Varsity Sports . . .

On the subject of our conference: "I hope that maybe the CIC might be expanded and broadened and that we could be more closely knit with our opponents."

"However, it must be done without costing us too much, we can't compete in the big time when so many other things are badly needed," he said.

"I hope we can win a good share of our games and that in spite of some lean years that are inevitable, we can maintain a sound program."

Thoughts To Ponder . . .

I am a Leland Traywick fan . . . he believes firmly in a sound athletic program and a winning one to boot. There was no talk of dropping a sport if it didn't pay its way . . . no talk about de-emphasizing or various other steps.

With the return of night football to Omaha University and the creation of an Inter-Pep cheering squad and a good cheerleaders group, things look promising.

We may not get the big budget or the scholarships we feel we need. But we will get a fair shake from this man.

I feel certain that Leland Traywick will see more than his share of OU football and basketball games in the months to come.

"Every man a sport and a sport for every man," might be an inscription on some watch given this man for service.

The impetus is here, it's up to you and I to see the program through. And that means by being there.

Hastings Here Tuesday . . .Creighton U Proves Double Patsy; Girouard's 15 Whiffs Foil Hawks

By Mike Moran

If you were to ask an Omaha U baseball player what his favorite place to hang his hat is, he might surely reply, "Rosenblatt Stadium, of course."

The reasons are obvious . . . three straight wins in the big plant and a big, big outfield with plenty of room to run.

The victims were city rival Creighton twice and Rockhurst College of Kansas City. Route going performances by Larry Krehbiel, Gary Girouard and Ken McEwen were responsible.

OU is at the CIC Tourney this weekend before returning to play its only game on the campus diamond Tuesday against Hastings at 3:00. It is a makeup game from early in the year. Omaha will host Wayne State Wednesday night at Rosenblatt Stadium in a 7:30 fray.

Krehbiel Beats Jays

Arch rival Creighton succumbed last Thursday night, 7-2, as OU ace Larry Krehbiel threw a seven hitter and fanned 12 in picking up his fourth win in as many outings.

The Omaha righthander saw visions of his undefeated string of 16 games coming to an end as the Jays battered him for four hits and two runs in the third to take a 2-1 advantage.

But the Benson grad settled down and took command the rest of the way as his mates collected nine hits off three Jay pitchers.

The Indians scored once in

OU's Dale Lortz . . . Safe at third against Creighton runs.

Omaha played errorless ball and snuffed out possible Creighton threats with double plays in the second and seventh innings.

A crowd of 1,121 was a stadium record for a regular season collegiate contest.

Cindermen Travel To CIC Carnival

Omaha University trackmen will be the underdogs this weekend at the CIC championships at Topeka, Kansas. Lloyd Cardwell's team has its weakest entry in many years and is expected to have a tough time staying out of last place in the five team chase.

The two day affair begins this afternoon with preliminaries in all but two field events and all track events.

Washburn Triumphs

Washburn beat OU, 84-61, in a dual meet at Topeka last Thursday. Omaha won seven of ten running events, but got nary a blue ribbon in the field to account for the loss.

Omaha had double winners in Max Kurz (100, 220) and Ken Gould (mile, two-mile).

OU runners fared poorly at the Howard Wood Relays at Sioux Falls, South Dakota last Saturday night.

The Indians, after domination sprints and relays at the meet for the last three years, could place only Ken Gould (5th in the two-mile) and Gary Power (5th in the highs) in any top event.

Results:
440 relay—Washburn, :44.3. Mile—Ken Gould, Omaha, 4:34.4. 440—Sparky Patterson, Washburn, :52. 100—Max Kurz, Omaha, :10. 120 highs—Gary Power, Omaha, :15.1. 880—Herb Rhodes, Omaha, 2:01.1. 330 intermediate hurdles—Sparky Patterson, Washburn, :39.7. Kristy Named CWS Queen

Omaha University gained its third College World Series Queen in a row Saturday with the announcement that Junior Kristy Isaacson will reign over the 1965 Tournament.

Miss Isaacson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fenton Isaacson of 2009 South 87th, is a 1962 graduate of Westside High School.

At Omaha, she is a cheerleader and a member of Chi Omega Sorority in addition to many other campus activities as well.

The 19-year-old OU student was selected by a panel of Omaha sportscasters and sportswriters to the Queen's spot for the June 7-11 tournament at Omaha's Rosenblatt Stadium.

PLAYER PROFILES

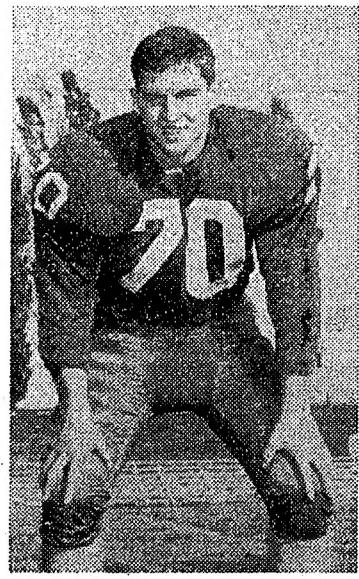

Harlan Aden

220 pound Harlan Aden is an All-CIC choice who came to OU two years ago from Scottsbluff Junior College. Originally Aden weighed in at 185, but summer work and some good food increased his tonnage to this year's 220.

Fast and agile for his size, Aden was able to pull from his guard spot and lead the Indian power sweep. He is a good blocker and has been used on defense on occasion.

Aden is at OU this year after receiving a "hardship" ruling from the Conference. He was hurt in the first game of one junior college game and the CIC dops ruled that that year would not count against him.

Larry Von Tersch

210 pound Larry Von Tersch is one of the real "hustlers" on the OU club. He's earned two letters despite sitting out one year to carry out military service.

Defense is his forte, although he's gone both ways at times. He has been one of the finest linebackers in Omaha U history.

Larry earned the starting linebacker spot as a freshman out of Creighton Prep in Omaha where he received All-City mention.

Omaha fans will remember Von Tersch's play against Bradley and Northern Illinois as high points in his 1964 season at OU.

He may shift entirely to defense this coming year.

Bill Meyers

Soph Billy Meyers was one of the real surprises to the Indian coaching staff last season. Meyers came to Omaha from Dubuque with little advance notice.

Yet, within three games, the hard working little guard had worked his way into the starting lineup. Nobody knew at first who he was.

But one look at the films told the story about the real job he was doing and it was a good one. Despite playing against men that outweighed him by thirty pounds, Billy held his own and did a fine blocking job.

OU coaches are looking for great things from the 19 year old Iowan.

Electionitis Hits The OU Campus

There's a new air of congeniality on campus. It started late last week and manifested itself first in OU's OUampi Room. Yes, it's petition-signing time again and electionitis has beset the campus.

During the four years I've attended OU, I've slowly come to look forward to these bi-annual elections because they bring with them the closest thing to that elusive state of being so tenderly tabbed "school spirit." Although not many long-lasting friendships evolve from these infrequent signing sessions, the students here at OU do get to know each other better.

Along with the general excitement in the wind over the elections themselves, there's the active competition between the social organizations which seems to melt nearly all the members of a competing group closer together, at least until the elections are over. This competition is a healthy approach to electing officers for the freshman, sophomore, junior and senior classes—as long as those people who so earnestly set their sights on the office know what they're getting into.

The elections, which will be held next Wednesday, May 12, will elect people not only for the class officers of the four classes but also for the Student Council and the Board of Publications.

Nearly everybody knows what the class offices are and the duties connected with these offices. And most interested students know what the Student Council is and what it's for. But, the Board of Student Publications is the little black sheep that many candidates vie for but very few of the voting students know about.

The Board of Student Pubs is a board that meets usually once a month and votes on OU's publications policy for both the GATEWAY and the TOMAHAWK, OU's yearbook. They also make budget recommendations which go to the University Budget Committee for final consideration. Presently, there are 12 board members, including two voting members which are elected from the student body to represent the student body.

In the past, this privilege of student representation on the board has been abused by persons elected to this responsibility who were unconcerned and/or indifferent. It has been, in fact, little more than another popularity contest. It may be that serving on the Pubs board is not as glamorous as being a class president but it is the duty of those elected to do the job. This means attending all the meetings and actively participating in the board's work.

I was shocked to hear the story about an ambitious student who once heard about the coming election and, in a wild hope to get elected to something, thought the Pubs Board looked like a likely suspect. Before he finished retrieving the necessary number of signatures on his dittoed sheet, he was told he didn't meet all the qualifications, to which he answered that it wasn't really so bad—he didn't know what the Pubs Board was all about anyway.

We come to college to learn many things. Among these things is responsibility. And it is in being elected to a given office or position where we can learn to be responsible citizens. By the time this paper reaches our readers' hands, the petitioning will have ceased and the personal campaigning will have commenced. We voting students owe it to ourselves to take an interest in the candidate and to be choosy for whom we vote. Now, don't be shy—step right up and ask them why they want your vote—then be sure and vote May 12.

Internationalism and OU

Omaha, Nebr., is a long ways away from Nigeria, Greece, or Morocco. And there are many students here that will never leave the U.S. shores and find out about these countries at first hand. But, you can meet some people from these exotic places and you can do it right here on campus.

April 1st, the first meeting of the International Students Organization met here on campus. This brand, spanking new club was organized so that those foreign students attending OU would have a means for getting better acquainted with their new culture. This group is planned so that while these foreign students are learning about midwestern habits and customs, the rest of the students can learn about their customs.

The ISO is headed by two students, Sheila Nelson and Timothy Adebayo. Tibothy is a student from Nigeria majoring in education and Miss Nelson is a junior majoring in French. During last year, OU hosted 20 foreign students. This year there are eleven foreign students with us. A list of the countries which they represent sounds like a United Nations roll call: Nigeria, Greece, Germany, Morocco, Philippine Islands, Pakistan, Korea and Cuba.

It is my feeling that if you're looking for a club to join, the ISO would be a worthy candidate. For three dollars a year, membership would allow you an opportunity to show your interest in international understanding instead of just talking about the need for it. It'll be fun, too. For example, last Sunday about 33 of the members met with Dr. Paul Kennedy, head of the department of secondary education, at his home for a picnic. A good time was had by all including Timothy Adebayo's little baby—he slept during the whole time.

Mid-America Exhibit To Show OU Artists

Three Omaha University artists have been accepted in the Mid-America Exhibition in Kansas City, Mo. This is sponsored by the Rockhill-Nelson Gallery. Out of 1153 entries, 86 works of other artists will be shown. Two instructors, sculptor Sidney Buchanan entered his welded metal work, "Mars with Blue Lights", print-maker Thomas Majeski entered a print "The Quince" and a sculpture student, Richard Stejskal, entered his welded piece, "March, 1965."

The exhibit opens May 13, 1965, and closes on June 13th.

Any student wishing to have his automobile registered for the Ma-ie Day parade should sign up in the Student Personnel Office on the second floor of the Milo Bail Student Center.

There is a limit of 130 cars for the parade... it's first come, first served.

Graduation Speaker To Be Wedemeyer

Omaha born General Albert C. Wedemeyer (ret.) will be the featured speaker at graduation day ceremonies, Monday, June 7.

General Wedemeyer, a 1919 graduate of West Point, retired from the Army in 1957 at age 54.

Most of his military career was spent in China and the Philippine Islands. He is considered one of the foremost experts on the Far East.

General Wedemeyer took command of the Chinese Theatre halfway through World War II and at the time was the youngest general in either the Army or the Air Force.

New Procedure

According to President Leland Traywick this year's commencement will be marked by a change in procedure in picking up degrees.

Traywick said that present plans call for the abolishment of each undergraduate receiving his degree individually from the President. Instead, the graduates will be handed their diplomas as they turn in their caps and gowns.

Traywick said the implementation of this procedure will help speed up the often times long and drawn out ceremony.

The president said he expects some 900 to 950 students to graduate on June 7.

The commencement ceremonies will begin at 5 p.m.

Graduate Student Is Suicide Victim

The body of 26-year-old James Zadina, a graduate student at Omaha University, was found in Calvary Cemetery Tuesday evening.

Acting County Coroner George Sullivan ruled that Zadina died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound in the head.

Zadina's father, James L. Zadina, told police that his son had been under much tension lately.

A sales slip for the death gun, dated Tuesday, was found by police in Zadina's car.

Kennedy Art Award Given To Peter Hill

Peter Hill, associate art professor, was awarded the John F. Kennedy Memorial Award at the 55th Annual Exhibition for Michigan Artists at the Detroit Art Institute. The show will open May 19, and last through June 20th. Mr. Hill entered his painting "Ulysses" which is a 5 x 6 foot Acrylic. This painting was purchased for $600 as a gift of the graduating class of 1965 Wayne State University, Detroit, and will be hung in the Wayne State University Center.

Ma-ie Day Survey Finds Unique Ideas

By
J. C. Milton

Why is a college without traditions like a student without a drink?

Frankly, I don't know. Besides that, it's too early in the morning for profound riddles. I only brought it up because Ma-ie Day, scheduled for next week, is a day which reeks of tradition to say nothing of drinking. (And I won't say anything about it if you won't.)

Therefore, I figured that it was a good time to take a survey and determine the full impact of such a glorious occasion.

On the question, "What does Ma-ie Day mean to you?" . . .

—79% replied "Huh?"

—6% (faculty members) answered "I have some thoughts on the subject but I don't want them printed."

—14% said "Plenty" and declined to elucidate.

—And I didn't even bother asking the above mentioned young man.

On the question "Do you think Ma-ie is adequate in promoting the image of Omaha U.?" . . .

—79% gave no answer, not even "Huh?"

—6% said "Would you kindly get out of here."

—And the remainder replied "Plenty—HooBoy!" and declined to elucidate.

In conclusion, I have determined from this survey that Ma-ie Day 1965 will be just as thrilling as last year's bash. Which, of course, raises the question "Is it worth it?" Personally, I'm not going to quibble over a tradition that gives me a day off.

Concert Choir Show Slated For Tuesday

The University of Omaha Concert Choir will be presented in concert on Tuesday evening, May 11, at 7:30 p.m. The program will feature a variety of music and soloists. Among the numbers presented will be "Witness" and "Mumblin' Ward" both arranged by choir director John Miller. Featured soloist will be Larry King.

Miss Diane Mahoney, pianist, will accompany the choir on "Frostiana" by Randall Thompson. The choir will also present six songs by Brahms, featuring Mrs. Rosalie Wiggins as soprano soloist.

The performance will be cl-axed with the well-known "America the Beautiful," also arranged by Mr. Miller.

OU's Budget For '66 Goes To Subcommittee

The first draft of the Omaha University fiscal 1966 budget will be submitted to the Board of Regents finance subcommittee this weekend. And according to president Leland Traywick most of the budget's details are fairly well set.

The budget will be reviewed by the entire Regents board on May 13 and then will be submitted to the board for final approval at its regular monthly meeting, May 20.

Teke Pledges Migrate To Missouri For Skip

The Teke pledges skipped town Friday night, taking three captured actives to Northwest Missouri State College in Maryville, Mo.

The 23 men were guests of the Delta Nu chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

The actives taken on this migration-type skip were Dave Bogardus, Bruce Dickinson and Bruce Will.

On Saturday a party was given in the OU chapter's honor.

The pledge skip is a tradition of Greek organizations, but the Tekes' version of the event was different since OU pledges do not usually skip outside the city limits.

The reason for this type of skip, according to one Teke pledge, was "to gain a better insight into fraternity life, not just to capture and torture actives."

Delta Sigs Gain Eleven From Formal Initiation

Delta Sigma Pi held formal initiation for 11 men Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. at the Tomahawk Inn.

Those activated were Charles Allison, Jack Anderson, John Anstey, Carl Dabbs, James Forcade and Donald Kavalec.

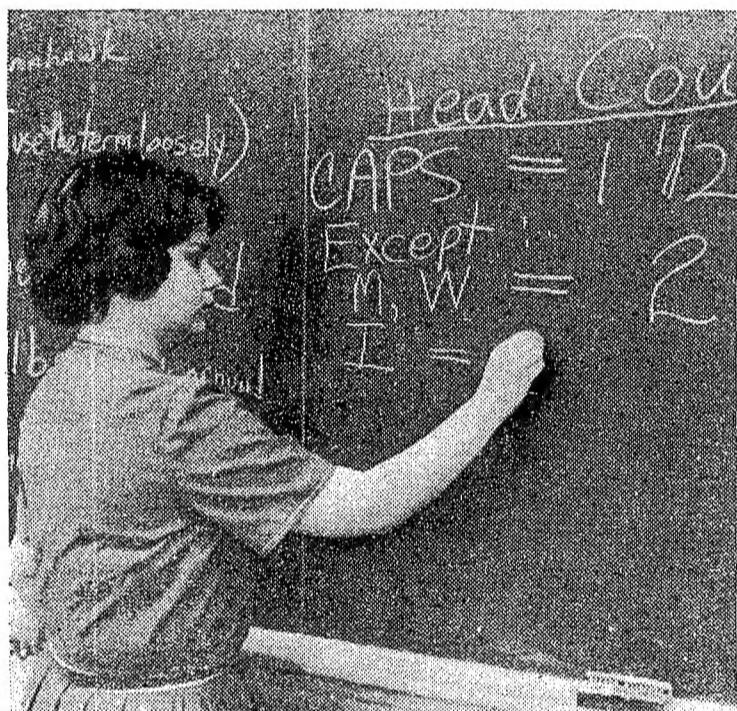

Others were Donald Mahan, Victor Massara, Kenneth Seddon, Douglas Volk and Wayne Wallingford.

Oh Well, We Got A Paper Out Anyway

"Shhhh! Quiet!"

Okay, now listen, I think you can hear it now! Yea, it does sound like cement blocks scraping together. Better take a look. It seems to be coming from 116 in the Applied Arts Building. Come on, let's get over there."

This is a brief excerpt from the case files of the OUCSP* investigating a regular Tuesday night campus disturbance.

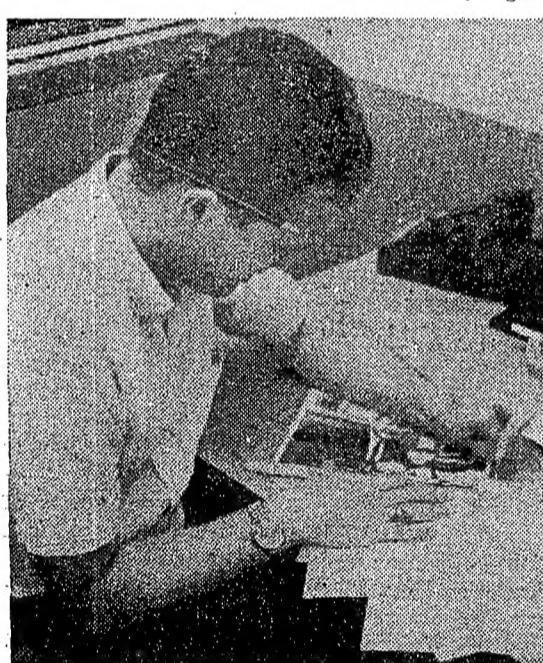

Actually, it really isn't a disturbance, it's just some journalism majors putting together the Gateway. The weird sounds have been reported to originate from a number of sources — Editor Leo Meidlinger, or Sports Editor Mike Moran or even from "mild mannered" copy-layout editor Linda Priesman, her regimented corps of copy readers and pencil pushers.

Any time from about 7 p.m. on you can observe the students entering "Bedlam Castle," ah I mean the Gateway office, for a session that eventually yields a finished student newspaper.

On this page, we have presented, pictorially, some of the steps in putting the paper together.
